Sonoma Boys for Submarine Service

U. S. Navy Picks Out Two Local Young Men for Undersea Service.

The startling news has reached here that Ensign "Bud" Shofner, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Shofner of Buena Vista, and Irving Shepard, son of Mrs. Eliza Shepard and nephew of the late Jack London, are to be put into the submarine service by the United States Navy in which they are both enlisted.

Ensign Shofner who is a West Point graduate and been in the navy some time prior to the present war is already in training for the undersea work and is stationed at an Atlantic coast port where for six months he will take special drill work in this hazardous line of duty. He will then be assigned to an important post.

Young Shepard, who recently enlisted, is stationed at San Diego and writes that he has been assigned to the submarine service and expects to enter upon his new activities very shortly.

The joint installation of officers of the popular order of Redmen, including the Daughters of Pocahontas, took place last Saturday night and as always, was a fine affair, where the real spirit of fraternity and good fellowship prevailed and the high principles of the order demonstrated.

There was speech making, music and dancing, into which young and old entered with enthusiasm and they took their departure reluctantly, to meet at the picnic of the local lodge of Daughters of Pocahontas the following day.

Oak Grove with its beautiful natural park and its fine pavilion was the scene of the picnic, which was a very successful affair. The Pauli-Hansen augmented orchestra furnished music and all had a royal time. BASEBALL STAR WINS FAIR GIRL

Miss Dorothy Macfarlane Becomes Bride of Ted Whitlow

Miss Dorothy Macfarlane, the vivacious daughter of Rev and Mrs. Macfarlane of Healdsburg, was led to the altar in San Jose Thursday by Ted Whitlow the young baseball star, formerly pitcher for Sonoma's team. The young couple did not confide their plans to even their closest friends but slipped quietly away to the Garden City where an obliging clerk issued them a license and kept their secret for them until after the happy event had been consummated.

The fair bride was one of our most charming and popular girls, her petite beauty and winsome personality making her a general favorite among a large circle of friends who will shower her with congratulations.

The popular young athlete who has won this fair girl for his wife is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodor Whitlow of Peralta avenue, San Francisco. Besides being a ball player, much in demand by semi-professional teams, he is a confidential secretary at one of the national banks of the metropolis. The young couple will reside permanently in San Francisco after a short honeymoon.

EVART FAILS IN APPEAL

Judge Seawell's Decision That Supervisoral Result was Tie is Affirmed by Appellate Court

That the supervisorial election in this district last November was a tie as decided by Judge Emmett Seawell after the recount, was affirmed by the Appellate Court at Sacramento, who held that Judge Seawell was correct in his ruling, which gave J. H. Weise and Wm. Evart the same number of votes.

Evart has announced that he will carry the matter to a higher court and ask for a rehearing through his attorney, Gil P. Hill, of Petaluma.

As the matter now looks another election will have to be called to decide the tie. Meanwhile Supervisor Harry Weise is looking after the interest of his district in good style and several desirable improvements of a permanent nature are being credited to his roadmasters. Mr. Revie of E l Verano, is being complimented on the widening out of the road past Oak Grove and in the San Luis and Glen Ellen districts there is some very conscientious work being done.

Water and Paving Are Discussed

City Trustees Hold Important Meeting and Much Light is Thrown on Public Questions

Two very important matters were up for discussion and for preliminary action before the Board of Trustees Thursday night and both the street improvement and the matter of water acquisition involve the expenditure of thousands of dollars, yet no one but the official family was present to voice their opinions. One would infer that the trustees have the thorough confidence of our taxpayers or that the taxpayers do not care a cuss what becomes of the town or their money.

However, when the question of putting in another concrete street like the half permanently laid on Napa Street, between the Union and Hotz store came up for discussion, there was decided evidence of opposition. Trustee Chas. DalPoggetto declared that he spoke for a large number of taxpayers, who protested the expenditure of money for fixing up another street in the same manner as the two blocks on Napa Street. He said he believed in completing Napa Street first and that he did not feel inclined to put through any measure that would force the property owners to do the work on their half of the street. Should the people petition for the improvement, he said he would favor proceeding with it at once.. Trustee Bulotti was of the same opinion.

For street work of a permanent character Trustee Chas. McDevitt stood unqualifiedlv and he voiced his opinion of the money sunk in Sonoma's streets in years past, in no gentle terms. He called the attention of the Board to the privilege which the property owners had to protest and their failure to do so. A forward looking Board of Trustees said McDevitt, should act for the best interest of the town and its people and he for one was game to force the matter to an issue, believing it to be for the ultimate good of the municipality. He pronounced oil macadam as inadequate and said that concrete was the only kind of a street and if it could be put in at 15 cents per foot he declared that there would be ample money to proceed with the movement.

Mayor Von Hacht suggested that the money set aside for the bridge on Washington Street, for which no satisfactory bid has ever been received, be turned over to the street improvement fund, but Trustee Dal Poggetto swatted this idea strong, saying that the taxpayers had been repeatedly taxed for a bridge which had never been provided.

Trustee Bose favored proceeding with the permanent street improvement and it was at last decided to let a prior motion, relative to the establishment of the necessary grades set the wheels in motion for the new work. City Engineer Lewis was instructed to take the preliminary steps.

On motion of Trustee Dal Poggetto seconded by Trustee McDevitt, the Red Cross was given the use of the City Hall for their sewing room.

City Attorney Cowgill reported an interview with Mr. Locke, of Mason & Locke, municipality experts, who advised the adoption of a special map to make uniform the grades throughout the city for the proposed water system, etc. The City Attorney consulted with Locke in regard to the holding of a bond election on the water project and seemed to think that Mr. Locke's offer to handle the matter and guarantee a flawless election, and to sell the bonds for a fee of $250 was very reasonable. Cowgill admitted that he had never had any experience in handling the business of a municipality before, nor in putting through a bond election, and that he was in no position to find buyers for bonds. However, he said he was paid for doing these things and as the law was plain he rather thought he could do the work if the Board so decided. As the Board has been keeping Cowgill on its staff at a salary of $25 for many months, with just this work in mind, his recommendation of another attorney at a fee of $250 and his bringing to mind the possibility of a costly reelection in the event of a flaw, makes former Trustee Breitenbach's line of argument good—that Sonoma is carrying excess baggage when it keeps a City Attorney on its pay roll at $25 per month and that expert advice can be procured when necessary from Mason & Locke. While we all know that Mason & Locke would not work for nothing it is admitted by Cowgill that they are the ones the city should employ if the city wants a guarantee. The taxpayers are therefore naturally wondering if Sonoma's City Attorney is oracle or ornament.

City Surveyor Lewis reported that the grades could be estblished by resolution instead of by ordinance, and that Civil Engineer Geo. Dillman would be in town Friday to get his data for plans and specifications of the water system.

A bill for $25 to C. E. Johnson was allowed after which the meeting adjourned.

James McElney, the well-known druggist, was admitted to citizenship on Tuesday. Mr. McElney was born in Ireland and passed a fine examination.

Mrs. Lochiel M. King and children have been spending vacation days at the Wadsworth home in the Hyde tract. Miss Doris King, granddaughter of the pioneer family has entered the Alameda High School.

What The Crucible Has Yielded

—oOo—

It has long been the hobby of social workers and students of sociology to indulge themselves in brain storms on the wonderful crucible which America as the melting pot of all nations has furnished, but it has remained for war to bring out in strong relief the real yield of the colossal process whereby we have sought to merge all peoples of the earth into the great United States without dross and without alloy.

A factor which early demanded our most thoughtful consideration was the question of hyphenated Americans and it was instantly recognized that any hypen would be a bar to real Americanism, a dangerous intervening barrier to real nationalism. We therefore discredited it from the start and were given magnificient assurance from the people who had come to live under our flag and be a part of our nation that nothing was to intervene with their loyalty, that descent was to cut no figure in the great crisis which was destined to draw us in to a grim war. This magnificient assurance and response from north, east, south and west was the best test and answer to the question of the effectiveness of the crucible and it came home to us with pride that ours was no common clay, but that from the crucible had come forth a wondrous nation who would align itself with right and justice regardless of the petty and narrow past which had circumscribed their destinies in cumbersome monarchies. The blood transfusion has undoubtedly been a wonderful success. The supreme test is being applied and the chart is a page of honor.

Slag or dross may be revealed but it is only the minimum and it can and will be properly dealt with. When it becomes a menace through lending itself to treason actuated by foreign design, it serves to whet the Americanism of our unalloyed 18 karat citizen until he becomes a potential factor to be reckoned with and the kindly hand of Uncle Sam becomes a mailed fist that strikes a sure and Titan-like blow.

Our immigration laws have always been one of our greatest problems and now we realize that they constituted the most vital question which has been confronting us. The United States is peopled with new blood each year and just how we have taken care of the influx is pretty well demonstrated now. The utility of our public institutions is most reassuring and the literacy test question is being answered. We are fast coming to realize that it is not the letter of the law but the spirit of it that is of value—that it is not the learned who will hesitate to be traitors or rascals, or the ignorant who are the most insidious foes. Spirit is a thing apart from education and literacy. These are unassimable elements which will come in to menace regardless of the fence we rear for immigration precaution. The dross of the earth is pretty well divided and there are rolling stones which will always furnish the baser materials for intrigue and anarchy. Knowing how to deal with these elements, wholly unappreciative of democracy and totally unresponsive to its opportunities for regeneration is a problem which is ever vital and means everything to the security of the nation whether at war or in peace.

Cutting Out the Unnecessary Service

—oOo—

With all the natural causes contributing to high prices, and with the scientific study being made of methods of efficiency by which we are to keep conditions somewhere near the present almost prohibitive prices, it is very necessary that we get at the artificial or burdensome features of trade which have attached themselves to the overhead of modern business and figure in the selling cost. For a long time it has been pointed out that telephone shopping and the delivery system are costly luxuries in which shoppers indulge and are ruinous to even the thrifty housewife who does not avail herself of these priveleges for the shopkeeper who serves the luxury easeloving customer must equipt himself to serve them and his fine wagons, auto trucks and accomodating clerks running at the beck and call of erratic customers are all figured in as overhead and necessarily are paid for by the buyers at these stores. Other shop-keepers, even though they do not cater to this class of customers, keep their prices up to the high mark in order to balance their credit business or their smaller volume of trade and thus the customer finds a frivolous practice ruinous.

The shop-keepers have long discouraged it but it has remained for the exigency of war to point the stern finger of disapproval at it and to sound a warning to the thoughtless or indifferent. They are beginning to see that the men answering telephones and running from delivery trucks into gates with small packages and keeping up teams and equipment are no small army in themselves which could be utilized to better advantage and whose elimination would mean increased production and lower prices. The buying public cannot expect to have as many servants as formerly and the quicker they realize it the better for the young men are going to war or drifting into more useful pursuits. The Council of National Defense has taken up this phase of conservation and urges that the elimination of waste in delivery service begin at once, not later than August first. They say:

"The retail stores of the United States are asked to introduce economies in their delivery services, in a letter which has been addressed to them by the Commercial Economy Board of the Council of National Defense. It is announced that an investigation conducted by the board has shown that many men and vehicles can be released for military or other service for the country by the elimination of unnecessary deliveries. It is urged that changes be made not later than August 1, 1917. The letter is as follows:

"In the present emergency it is absolutely necessary that the country's resources be used to full advantage to aid in carrying on the war. This requires that all unnecessary services shall be eliminated in retail trade as well as in other lines of business. The Commercial Economy Board has made a careful investigation of the economies that are possible in the delivery service of retail stores. This shows that a large number of men and vehicles can be released for military or other service that is essential to the welfare of the country.

The board points out, therefore, that delivery service in retail stores can be very substantially reduced immediately by restricting the free delivery of small purchases, by eliminating special deliveries, and by other means. If possible, not more than one delivery a day should be made on each route.

The board urges, furthermore, that the acceptance of returned goods be reduced to an absolute minimum, and that all non-essential operations in each store be eliminated. There is such urgent need for men and equipment in other work that the country can not endure the waste that is occasioned by the abuse of the returned-goods privilege and accommodation deliveries of small purchases.

We trust that we may have your co-operation in making these corrections immediately effective. These changes in delivery methods should be introduced as early as possible, certainly not later than August 1, 1917. The board will use every resource at its command, including the co-operation of the State councils of defense, to assist in making these changes effective."

Business Logic

—oOo—

There is rightful protest from all newspapers against being asked for free advertising by the government, as in the recent Liberty Loan campaign, the generosity of the press was really imposed upon. That appreciation was not forthcoming was evidenced by subsequent laws to compel the papers to pay taxes on profits and advertising and the tendency to deal with them just as though they were any other business concern. With paper soaring in price and the government investigation bringing no relief, it is surely too much to expect the newspapers whose fine spirit is daily evidenced in the editorial columns, to give also their advertising space by which they make their living and are able to maintain themselves on a basis which permits of giving assistance to the government in so many worthy phases of the national exigency. When it comes to financial matters and true business logic, there should be careful thought along these lines. We like to praise the wisdom of food conservation and the great virtues of the Red Cross and we like to contribute to the success of these materially as well as spiritually, but we want mutual assistance to permit us doing so. It costs money to smear on the ink and the blank paper is no gift nor is the maintenance of the highbrow who wields the quill widely separated from the insistent demands of "old stomach." Food for thought is all right but thought for food is something that should never be lost sight of by the government in these days of practicability.

VISITORS HERE FROM OHIO

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Mueller, prominent residents of Cincinnati, Ohio have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wicker this week. The Muellers are on a pleasure tour and their trip is to include Glacier Park and the far north. While here they motored to the Petrified Forest and other points of interest and were altogether charmed with Sonoma county and with the beautiful vineyards in and about St. Helena.

Mr. Mueller is connected with many big business enterprises in the middle west and in a recent number of the "American Machinist" is the following nice commentary on him:

"As you know, the first machine tools were built in England about seventeen hundred and fifty, and some fifty years later the industry was firmly planted in New England. But do you realize how young, comparatively speaking, is the great machine tool industry of the Middle west?

For instance, Oscar Mueller assisted in building the first milling machine in the Middle West and Mr. Mueller is not an old man, as anyone who has recently bowled with him would testify. He was born on Aug. 2, 1863, in Ohio.

He worked on this first milling machine while he was with the Cincinnati Screw and Tap Co., later the Cincinnati Milling Machine Co.

He entered their employ in 1878, served his time, was promoted to foreman, and was superintendent of the Cincinnati Milling Machine Co. until 1892. From 1892 to 1896 he was contractor for Lodge and Davis Co. and then he and Mr. Henry Dreses formed the Dreses and Mueller Co., which was continued until 1903. Mr. Mueller then incorporated the Mueller Machine Tool Co. of which he continues to be president. Oscar Mueller went through the Cincinnati public schools and then took the highest award at the Ohio Mechanics Institute for mechanical drawing.

He is a member of the Ohio Mechanics Institute, all the Cincinnati Masonic Bodies, the Cincinnati Business Men's Club and is a director of the Unity Banking and Saving Co.

If at any time you are in Cincinnati and want a quiet game of pinochle, phone West 655L—but leave your money at home."

The Muellers and the Wickers became acquainted in 1902 when the latter went over to Europe to the Paris Exposition. The Wicker home has been the scene this week of several handsomely appointed dinners in the visitors honor and on Monday evening the elaborate menu included pheasant raised on the Wicker place.

The visitors expect to continue on their journey very shortly as Mrs. Mueller is homesick for a favorite grandchild which she left behind her in the Ohio metropolis.

THE STRANGER WITHIN OUR GATES

That it pays to be courteous and affable to "the stranger within our gates" is well demonstrated by the splendid notices Sonoma Valley is receiving since the visit here last month of Colonel E. Hofer, prominent Portland capitalist and editor of the "Manufacturer".

The latest writeup appears in the Portland Oregonian, wherein Mr. Hofer reiterates many compliments on Sonoma Valley which he describes as worth while and altogether charming in its many phases. He speaks particularly of his cordial reception at the London ranch and the Vallejo-Emparan home.

While here he was registered at the Union Hotel and was also entertained by the W. L. Murphys to whom he confided that he should like some day to make his home in this ideal valley.

Excerpts from Col. Hofer's article in the Portland Oregonian of July 8th are as follows:

"Two days spent in the Sonoma Valley recently must always remain as a golden memory for one with even the dullest appreciation of the beauties of nature. The region made famous by Jack London in several of his books, notably "The Valley of the Moon" and "The Little Lady of the Big House." These books are read all over the world and travelers of a sentimental turn have come here from Australia and Scotland direct to see the beauties of Sonoma."

"A drive through the Sonoma Valley by moonlight is like a tour through a midsummer night's dream. Fine roads with bungalows and electric lights everywhere, almost never out of the sound of music at the roadhouses and resorts, illuminated gardens, dancing pavilions. Here is the outdoor and indoor pleasure resort, where one can get good board and room for $7 to $9 a week, with free music and picture shows, and free motor rides on trips about the valley to the more famous springs.

Wine Vanishes on Tongue.

There is still abundance of food and drink at oldfashioned prices, the population being not yet screwed up to the highest tension of money-grabbing. Here were planted the first vineyards, and in General Vallejo's time his large ranch was one vineyard. The necessities of life were grown in smaller quantities as needed, and Italians, Swiss and Mexicans loved the grape and soon found that on the sunny slopes and gravelly ridges it reached perfection. They built wineries and vaults of the native red rock that still stand, and stored them with wines, some of which, now half a century and longer in the wood, are sought by connoisseurs from all over the East and Europe and frequently bought at fabulous prices.

I should not tell it, but I drank wine that was made in the early '50s. It was like molten frozen gold and so volitile that it vanished on the tongue. The empty glass retained a flavor like a bouquet of orange blossoms and roses. The commoner wines are consumed by everybody. Many of the wineries sell their whole output in New York City. But this is all tantalizing to write about in an age when we are all to be submerged in the cold water wave that is sweeping over the Nation."

"The Vallejo home, a beautiful country place, is back against the foothills at Sonoma and is surrounded by 300 acres of the original grant. This grant once covered Solano and Sonoma counties and a great deal besides."

"The old home itself is a landmark and a notable one. It is kept up by a surviving daughter of the Vallejo family, a cultured and interesting Spanish lady who speaks of her father with great feeling of affection. He was the hiu muckimuck tillicum of California in his day, as we designate great chieftans in Chinook Indian."

"The Jack London ranch is the great show place of Sonoma Valley. I will not attempt to describe the cattle—Shorthorn and Jerseys—and they are not dehorned, either, but they are perfect types of beauty, and Mrs. Eliza Shepard, Mr. London's sister, who is farm manager, and Mr. Harrison, a Canadian fine stock expert, both intimated that they might come to the Oregon State Fair with the show animals of their herds this Fall. If they do, Oregon people will see some additional fine stock—animals that have taken state, National and international prizes. The Jack London stud of Clyde stallions, mares and colts is a sight worth going miles to see. He literally put the earnings of his pen into pens and established new standards in fine stockbreeding for the Pacific Coast. His work is being carried on by safe and sane hands through the labors of his devoted sister, who was with him for five years and is one of the best woman farm managers in the United States. She is a tireless and enthusiastic business rustler and is extending the lines of breeding as laid down by her brother."

Mrs. Jack London Working

Instead of moping and mourning, after the fashion of suddenly bereaved women, Mrs. Shepard and Mrs. London are trying to realize that they have duties to preform and service to render to their late brother and husband, and they are keeping up the traditions and the industries founded by the novelist."

Through a misstatement in all the county papers last week it appeared that the Railroad Commission had decided to raise the minimum lighting rate here, but the impression is corrected by the California Telephone and Light Company's representative, Mr. Evans, of Santa Rosa, who says that the charge in Sonoma Valley south of and including Glen Ellen, will be $1 as formerly.

RACE MEET AT PETALUMA

Kenilworth Park in East Petaluma at present resembles the old days when Harry Stover, the late owner, was in charge and when some of the best meets were held and some of the fastest horses performed on the track

Sam Norris, the well known track expert, has arrived from Santa Rosa and is getting things in readiness for the great meet which will open Wednesday, July 18 and conclude on the 21st. The Petaluma track is known to be one of the fastest tracks in the state and will be put in good shape for the coming meet. Hundreds of horses will be brought here and there will also be many visitors. The town will present a lively appearance during the meet. (Courier)

JACK MEYERS PASSES FINE EXAMINATION

Jack Meyers of Schellville passed a first-class examination for admission as a citizen of the United States yesterday in Judge Denny's court and was complimented by both court and U. S. attorney. Mr. Meyers answered all the questions put to him like clockwork and could have kept on answering too. He has learned the Constitution of the United States by heart. (Democrat)

ESTEEMED LADY PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Helen Smith, mother of Elmer and Flores Smith, formerly of Kenwood and a former resident of Napa county, died in San Francisco Sunday after an illness of more than a year. The interment was at Napa on Tuesday.

Mrs. Smith was a most estimable lady and her many kindly traits endeared her to a large circle of friends who will regret the news of her passing. Deceased left a son, Elmer M. Smith, the prominent Odd Fellow and business man of San Francisco and a young lady daughter who will take up her residence with her brother and his wife.

Helen Hurd Smith was 63 years of age, widow of the late Z. W. Smith and a native of Illinois.

MERVYN OPENING NEXT SATURDAY NIGHT

One of the grand times always provided by Messrs Nichols and Bank of Glen Ellen will be given next Saturday night when the popular Mervyn Hotel opens under the new management of these two well known resort proprietors. The event will be celebrated with a grand ball at the Hotel Chauvet and that irresistable jazz music which has made Nichol's dances famous will be on hand with the latest music including several numbers never before heard in the valley.

Admission will be free and both Mr. Nichols and the genial Bank will be on hand to greet their guests.

Several weddings are said to be not far distant. One is that of a young heiress residing here, and the other the only son of old residents, who is reported engaged to a charming school marm.

Rev. Chas. Champlin, a former Sonoma boy, but now the brilliant pastor of the Pittsburg church, will occupy the pulpit in the local Congregational Church tomorrow morning.

RED CROSS

Wednesday afternoon witnessed the start of the Work Room of the Red Cross Military Relief Committee. Permanent quarters had not been secured, but the women gathered at the home of Mrs. G. H. Hotz, and tho few in number, their enthusiasm offset it. Large bundles of old linen and cotton were systematically reduced to piles of regulation size napkins, tray cloths, tumbler covers and eye-dabs; while other workers took the scraps and snipped them into filling for fractured pillows. More materials for this work is needed, and anyone who can do so is urged to donate any old or new scraps of clean cloth. Bundles may be left at the Hotz store.

It is hoped that many new members to the Red Cross will be listed at Friday's meeting. COME and JOIN. YOU are NEEDED! It is only a dollar a year, and some poor fellow may lose a leg or his life even for lack of this very dollar! Hospital supplies over there are so desperately needed, as long train loads of wounded arrive at the big bases in endless processions.

At the last meeting the following names were reported:
